

Staking out a position

Southwest Airlines is the brand of airline for business travelers that want low fares, low frills and on-time flights because Southwest has the lowest fares and the best on-time performance record in the airline industry.

What do we do better than anyone else? How does this advantage translate into benefits for our customers or clients? What empirical proof can we show that supports our claim?